New study will take look at storm drains

By ANDREA ADELSON
Staff Writer

Upland's City Council approved an engineering study to redesign storm drains in north Upland and especially around water-damaged homes on First and 24th Streets Monday night.

Trash set out for collection on Nov. 30, the day of a wind-driven rainstorm that felled 950 trees in Upland, clogged drains on the city's northern border streets.

Water from the short-lived but intense storm overran curbs and cascaded into five yards between First and Second Streets, paralleling North Euclid Avenue, Assistant City Engineer John Wisz said. Two homes were damaged. Stacked sandbags still line a sidewalk at 24th and First.

Money for the study and future construction costs will be diverted from a street improvement fund and delay some projects, City Engineer Fred Blanchard said.

"It's not like we have money sitting around," he said. "We'll be forced to sweep (some of the street projects) under the rug."

A portion of the construction costs will be shared by county government. An additional culvert and more inlets on 24th are being considered, Bob Ingram, county flood control director, said.

The centerline of 24th is the dividing line between city and county territory.

Wisz estimated 24th Street improvements on the east side of Euclid to cost $50,000.

While damage on 24th Street is the focal point of the study, downstream drains between 24th and 19th Streets on both sides of Euclid will also be reviewed, "to make sure there are no bottlenecks" in old grove channels that are only partially replaced with piping.

Runoff between San Antonio Avenue and Euclid all drains east into stone-lined ditches on Euclid from scattered catch basins, Wisz said.

The studies will cost about $10,000, completed by consultant Montgomery Engineering of Pasadena. Construction is scheduled to begin by March, he said.

Lens rotated in first motion camera

In 1882 Etienne Marey of France became the first person to capture motion with a single camera. He had developed a lens that rotated a single glass photographic plate in front of a lens aperture of his camera. The plate rotated one-twelfth of its diameter in one-twelfth of a second, resulting in a multiple-exposure plate of continuous action.

Quake preparedness plan completed

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

San Bernardino County completed its role Monday as the leading partner in a model plan of earthquake preparedness for Southern California.

The Board of Supervisors accepted two thick volumes of plans for county response both to an actual earthquake and to an earthquake prediction — in anticipation of the day that valid predictions could be made.

Howard Littlefield, administrator of the county General Services Agency, said, "In the past, we have responded to major disasters by taking certain actions after they occur. With the recent improved techniques that have been developed throughout the world toward prediction, there was concern that we try to develop such a mechanism in Southern California for this."

Provisions for the county to respond in advance of an earthquake to an accurate prediction makes the planning unique, Littlefield said.

The earthquake preparedness project began in 1980 as a joint effort of the county, Federal Emergency Management Agency and state Office of Emergency Services. Model planning by San Bernardino County will serve as a prototype for Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and Ventura counties.

County Administrative Officer Robert Rigney — a member of the California Seismic Safety Committee with a longtime interest in earthquake preparedness — called the project the first of its kind in the nation.

Littlefield said the plans were drafted by 13 committees that included all county departments and representatives of cities, utility companies, transportation companies, volunteer organizations and other private interests.

"In preparing for prediction, we agonized for many weeks over what time frame to work on and finally settled on two basic time frames."

Littlefield said one is long term that could take several years for such features as remodeling of structures. The other, short-term measures cover what the county would do if it receives an authoritative prediction of an earthquake a few days before it happens.

He said the other two phases of the plans cover county actions after the earthquake for the first 72 hours and for the first month.

RIDE program targets drunken drivers

By IAN FALLIS
Staff Writer

One of a police officer's basic goals is to save lives. And that's what the RIDE program is all about.

RIDE stands for Regional Intoxicated Driver Enforcement.

The program is a joint effort of the California Highway Patrol, the Montclair, Ontario and Upland police departments and the Rancho Cucamonga Sheriff's Substation aimed at reducing the number of drunken drivers on West Valley roads this holiday season.

The officers in the program are hand-picked for their expertise, experience and training in spotting, evaluating and arresting allegedly drunken drivers, said Ontario Police Sgt. Bill Sommers, a program coordinator.

On a recent RIDE patrol, with a reporter along, CHP Officer Perry Taylor said that most people arrested on suspicion of driving while under the influence of alcohol are people who wouldn't normally be considered criminals.

"They're not hardened criminals — until they kill somebody," Taylor said. Nobody forces them to drink and then drive, he noted, and people have to be responsible for their actions.

Those actions can lead to the injury or death of innocent, sober people, he said, and "I'd much rather remove the hazard from the roadway before that happens."

Sommers said that, "our purpose isn't to arrest people, it isn't to give tickets. It's to save lives and (prevent) injuries. Unfortunately, the only way to do that is to give tickets."

Sunday marked the end of the first two weeks of the RIDE Program this year, and officers had arrested 71 people on suspicion of drunken driving.

They had also issued 54 citations, given 126 warnings and made three felony arrests — two on suspicion of possession of narcotics and one for investigation of possessing an illegal weapon.

The two men arrested on suspicion of possession of narcotics were allegedly speeding in Upland Thursday night when they went past a Montclair police car, officers said.

Not realizing that it was a RIDE car and carried a Montclair officer and a CHP officer, one of the men reassured the other that nothing was going to happen to them, officers said.

He kept up the reassurances even after they were pulled over, the officers added.

But the CHP officer arrested the driver on suspicion of drunken driving and searched the car, allegedly finding narcotics in the process.

As a reporter watched them being booked at the West End Sheriff's Substation, one of the men said, "You know it's a bad night when a Montclair cop arrests you in Upland."

Earlier in the evening, Sommers said mixing officers — putting CHP officers with Montclair police, for example — kept drunken drivers off guard.

"They see a CHP officer getting out of an Ontario patrol car and it's 'I'll never drink again,'" he joked.

Mixing officers has other benefits as well, officers said.

Officers from different departments are getting to know each other. Thursday night, CHP's Taylor rode with Ontario Police Officer Jim Trost, and the two men seemed to work together as well as if they were both from the same department.

The officers shared similar experiences dealing with allegedly drunken drivers. Both said a common misconception came from the term "drunk driving."

"Everybody tells me, 'I'm not drunk,'" Trost said. Two people who had twice the legal limit of alcohol in their blood said just that Thursday night.

But a person doesn't have to be drunk to be arrested, just "under the influence." And that, according to law, comes at a blood alcohol level of .10.

People with blood alcohol levels just above that are the most dangerous, the officers agreed. Those who have had more to drink know they are drunk, and try to be careful.

But people with blood alcohol levels just above .10 "feel like Superman," they said. Those are the ones most likely to try to drive fast and cause accidents.

West End United Way honors fund raisers

Although many division campaigns remain under way, the West End United Way earlier this month climaxed the 1982-83 fund-raising campaign at a victory dinner in the Montclair Community Center.

Even with some campaigns continuing, according to campaign chairman Wallace J. "Pap" Paprocki, the campaign will net $1.35 million, 91.9 percent of the $1.47 million goal.

Recipients of the "Best of the Good Skate" awards were the employees of Ameron Pipe Division for the largest employee increase. They pledged $8,722, a 1,849 percent per capita increase.

Jerry Montgomery of Ameron Pipe accepted the award on behalf of his fellow employees and the members of the company's five labor unions: the Operating Engineers Local No. 12, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers No. 477, Laborers Local No. 783, Boilermakers Local No. 92 and Teamsters Local No. 467. Montgomery is steward of the operating engineers.

The evening's reports included totals from the nine campaign divisions, two of which exceeded their goals.

Division I, the United Way's employees' campaign, exceeded its goal early in the campaign. To date, it has raised $11,957, or 100.8 percent of a $11,865 goal. Chairman of the division was Erik Larson of the Inland Empire Boys and Girls Clubs.

Division E, the campaign for educational employees, exceeded its goal of $53,813 by raising $56,228, or 104 percent of its goal. Dr. Samuel Ferguson, Chaffey College superintendent and division chairman, said that although the division has exceeded its goal, some schools have yet to complete their campaigns and the division expects to receive an additional $8,703, boosting the total to $64,931, or 120.7 percent, of the goal.

"I'm really pleased the educators have come to the forefront in contributing," he said. "In an era when those in public employment have so many problems, with salaries and layoffs, it's exemplary that the spirit of kindness and altruism still exists."

Reports from other divisions included pledges to date and projections for incomplete campaigns.

Ontario Postmaster Edythe Armstrong, chairwoman of the government division, reported that $31,343, or 30 percent, of the $103,273 goal has been raised. She predicted that the division will produce $106,803, or 103 percent.

Bastion Kooiman, chairman of Division G, residential solicitation, said the division expects to raise $24,484, or 93.7 percent of its $26,135 goal. A total of $11,714, or 45 percent, had been raised at the time of the meeting.

Division F, the professional classification, was chaired by retired Judge Milton E. Milleman. To date, Milleman reported, the division had raised $15,782, or 70 percent, of the $22,650 goal. It expects to raise $20,319, or 90 percent of its goal.

Jim Maples of The Daily Report headed Division B, which includes campaigns in firms employing between 50 and 249 workers. He said $271,715 had been pledged. He said this was 71 percent of the $384,194 goal and predicted the campaign will net $318,736, or 83 percent of its objective.

County eyes gift of citrus packing house

By DON GREEN
Staff Writer

Christmas is approaching, but the county Board of Supervisors still took time Monday to look a gift horse in the mouth.

The gift in this case was a citrus packing house that the county hopes to one day move next to the San Bernardino County Museum. The wary horse trader was local Supervisor Robert Townsend.

The East Highland Citrus Association, going through liquidation, asked the board to accept the packing house and equipment, valued at $237,000, as a donation to the county.

Supervisors put off acceptance of the packing house for a week to investigate the potential costs of demolition and hauling.

The county has a long-standing interest in setting up a Citrus Heritage Park to commemorate the role of the citrus industry in the county. However, the county's hopes of getting state funding and park designation were dashed earlier this year when a competing proposal in Riverside County won out.

The packing house and an adjoining structure are located near Elder Gulch and Greenspot roads in East Highlands. The association ceased operations about a year ago.

Acceptance of the gift was on the consent calendar for routine approval, but Townsend raised questions about the potential cost to the county.

Lynn Kirkhofer, assistant county administrative officer, said there would be no cost for the acquisition. The county has an arrangement with the association for security, and security funds for fences are in the county's capital improvement budget, he added.

He said the association and Mobile Oil Co. have an agreement to maintain the packing house for three years.

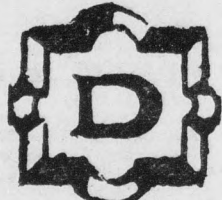

Supervisor David McKenna said, "The cost associated with moving and relocating are not budgeted — just securing it until we can figure out a way to put our citrus park together."

Townsend said he supported the idea of the park, but noted the county could be liable for costs to move the structure and equipment without a location to put them.

"We don't have any place to put it," he noted. Kirkhofer said engineers are still studying the feasibility of moving or restoring the structure. He said the equipment is the "most unique" aspect of the 76-year-old packing house.

McKenna noted that the association hopes to have board action by the end of the year for tax purposes.

Dog license citations sent by mistake

A number of San Bernardino County residents recently received citations in the mail inadvertently because the county computer showed a currently unlicensed dog at that address.

Dr. Don Rice, acting county health officer, said residents who received these citations can expect a letter within the next two weeks revoking all citations.

Rice asks residents who no longer have an unlicensed dog to call Animal Control Services toll-free to have your name removed from the computerized dog licensing records. If you do have an unlicensed dog, you should go to the nearest license purchasing office.

A county ordinance requires all dogs four months or older in the unincorporated areas of the county to be licensed yearly.

In many cases, citations were issued when the computer incorrectly showed an unlicensed or unvaccinated dog at an address. In a money-saving attempt, citations were sent out by mail to cut down on man-hours needed to follow up on each household listed by the computer, Rice said.

Gas company offering help to senior citizens

With residential gas bills rising significantly this winter, Southern California Gas Co. has developed a number of programs to help senior citizens manage their energy bills.

Some of the programs were recommended by a Senior Citizens Advisory Panel convened by the gas company last year and staffed by civic leaders and community workers. Other programs are part of the utility's overall efforts to assist the 12 million people within its service territory.

"We are particularly concerned about the effort of higher gas bills on the elderly," said Bob Salazar, district manager of Southern California Gas Co. "The majority of them live on fixed incomes, and the seniors are among the last able to absorb added costs. Moreover, many of our senior customers must maintain warmer-than-average homes due to health needs."

"Our assistance programs are available through local gas company offices," the utility official noted. "We urge all of our elderly customers to consider the benefits of these programs for themselves."

Gas company assistance programs include:

- Community Agency Referral: Local gas company offices and field service workers can refer customers to social service groups and community agencies. Some of these agencies can help with free home repairs, assistance in paying bills, budget counseling, and mediating between the elderly and government offices.
- Third-Party Notification: Senior citizens may designate a third party to receive any service termination notice sent out by the gas company. The third party, who can be a relative, friend or community agency, has no obligation to pay the bill but would know of a pending turn-off of gas in time to assist the customer.

Additionally, the gas company now sends a representative in person to contact customers 48 hours in advance of a shut-off. If the customer can show that a shut-off would be dangerous to the health of someone living at the residence, the service will not be terminated provided other satisfactory arrangements can be made.

- Level Pay Plan: Instead of paying for gas used during the previous month, customers can pay a 12-month average cost each month. By "leveling" high winter heating bills and low summer bills, gas customers can make their energy costs more manageable.
- Residential Conservation Services: At no special charge, a gas company field representative will inspect a residence for insulation and energy efficiency, and draw up a detailed list of recommendations.
- Weatherization Financing and Credits Program: The gas company now offers cash rebates for 11 basic weatherization improvements to residents of single-family dwellings. Alternatively, owners of single-family dwellings may qualify for 8 percent annual financing. Early next year similar programs will be available for multifamily dwellings.
- Weatherization Van: In March, the gas company unveiled a mobile weatherization van designed to help low and fixed-income families weatherize their homes. A classroom on wheels, the van visits different communities on a regular basis. It can be scheduled specially for your neighborhood and community groups by calling (213) 689-4137.
- Conservation Hotline: Customers can have their conservation questions answered by calling (800) 352-4124.

Holiday safety advice offered

Holiday festivities can quickly turn to disaster and Foothill Fire Protection District's fire safety division has issued a list of safety hints.

1. Choose a tree that is fresh as possible.
2. To keep the tree fresh, place it in damp sand or in a container of water.
3. Do not place trees too close to a fireplace. It will dry more quickly and could easily ignite from a stray spark.
4. Take the tree down as soon after Christmas as possible before it gets too dry and brittle.
5. Check wiring and sockets on all lights prior to putting them on the tree or house. Do not use candles on a tree.
6. Remove outdoor lights after the Christmas season. Leaving them up throughout the year promotes faster deterioration of the wiring.
7. When leaving the house or going to bed, unplug Christmas lights.
8. After unwrapping gifts, place the paper and boxes in a trash container. Do not burn them in the fireplace.
9. When cleaning up after a party, empty ash trays into a metal container. Cigarettes that are placed within anything combustible can burst into flame several hours later.
10. Dispose of used Christmas trees properly. Do not burn it in the fireplace. Dried Christmas trees are very explosive.
11. Buy smoke detectors as gifts. Check smoke detectors that are already installed and keep on hand a supply of fresh batteries for the detector.

Anyone desiring further information on how to have a fire safe holiday is welcome to call district fire prevention specialists Vera Arthur or Susan Wolfe at 987-2535.

Englishman says U.S. students 'enthusiastic'

An Englishman who teaches English at Mt. San Antonio College in an exchange program says American students are outgoing and enthusiastic.

George "Kerry" Renshaw is spending the year on the MSAC faculty, replacing Keith James who has gone to England to fill Renshaw's post at City and East London College.

The two not only exchanged jobs for a year, but also moved their families into each other's home. Renshaw, his wife Davida, and daughter Layla, 5, are residing in the James home in Claremont.

This is the first time in nearly 30 years and only the second time in the history of MSAC that the school has had a Fulbright exchange teacher on the campus.

"Students were taken aback the first week by my British accent. Since then, they seem to ignore it," Renshaw noted. "The students and faculty have been extremely friendly and cooperative."

The Renshaws visited the United States a few years ago when returning from teaching assignments in Western Samoa. They decided then to try to return.

An Oxford University graduate, Renshaw has been teaching 14 years. The last three have been at the London college, located in one of the poorer sections of the city.

"In England, my students range from 13 to 19 years of age," he said. "Our classes are much smaller than here. We have a student-faculty ratio of about one teacher to eight students. This allows us an opportunity to conduct classes more informally."

"Here, a teacher must use more of a lecture format for classes of 30 students. Also, in the United States there is a greater emphasis on methodology. Students learn more about sentence structure and style."

"In England, English is taught through literature study," he added.

"The students I've seen here are interested and willing. But I sometimes feel they haven't read enough. Also, they seem to be isolated from many worldwide interests. That could be American television's fault."

"Television in this country doesn't give the overall world view," he added.

While Renshaw and James had exchanged tapes to familiarize each other with the hosting countries and campuses, the visiting professor was not prepared for the expanse of the MSAC campus.

"In this exchange program, teachers apply and then are matched with a counterpart. One has no choice in the assignment. We are delighted to be in the Southland."

"We met other exchange teachers and their families for an orientation in San Francisco last August before coming on to Claremont," said Renshaw.

"MSAC is larger and more modern than our English schools. In this country, there seems to be an emphasis on buildings and grounds while most of our colleges are old and the campuses crowded. On the other hand, our classes are smaller and more intimate."

Renshaw has been impressed by the drive and energy of his MSAC students. "Here, students have cars and are more affluent than those I teach at home. On the other hand, they are older and most work either full or part time."

In England, unemployment is at 14 percent. This compares to 10 percent in the valley. The inability to get jobs in depressed Britain has led to an increase in college enrollment, said Renshaw.

However, he added, a far higher percentage of U.S. students attend college than do in England.

As a guest from another nation, Renshaw relates well with students in his evening classes. He's teaching English as a second language to primarily adult students.

"I introduce things by saying 'Americans say...' and it goes over very well," he explained.

Renshaw and his wife said attending a MSAC football game was an enlightening experience.

"We'd never seen the bands and pep squads like colleges have here. The participating in activities outside the classroom is really wonderful. English schools don't have these things," Mrs. Renshaw noted.

She is also a teacher in England and taught while the couple lived in Western Samoa. Here, she has become active as a volunteer teacher's aide at Sycamore School where Layla is in a kindergarten-first grade combined class.

The family feels that Claremont "is an ideal city" and not unlike many English towns.

They have attended concerts, art exhibits and lectures.

Save $50 by using your head.

Gas rates are going up. So doing everything you can to save gas is really smart. Like installing a flow-restrictor shower head. A low-flow showerhead will save you about $50 a year in water and the gas used to heat water. And a low-flow showerhead is easy to install. All you need is a wrench. Then you can use lots of hot, relaxing water. Without using lots of gas.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA COMPANY

2 valley solons favor pay hike, 1 votes no

Two valley congressmen last week voted for the 15 percent pay increase approved in the House of Representatives.

A third, stating it was the wrong time for such a move considering the economic environment of the country, voted no.

That no vote was cast by Rep. David Dreier, R-33rd Dist., which serves Pomona, La Verne, San Dimas, Claremont, Diamond Bar, Walnut and Glendora.

The yes votes were cast by Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-35th Dist., which includes Upland, Rancho Cucamonga, Montclair and Chino; and Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-36th Dist., which includes Ontario.

The final vote approving the raises, up from $60,662 to $69,800 a year, was 303-109.

Brown's press aide explained that Brown long had supported having congressmen's votes on pay raises recorded and he wanted this done Tuesday.

Brown cast his yes vote for the measure by Rep. Vic Fazio, D-Calif., to approve the 15 percent pay raise because, the aide explained, it was only one-half the 27 percent pay raise that automatically would have gone into effect had the guaranteed cost-of-living raises been permitted.

Had that happened, the aide explained, salaries for congressmen would have soared to near $77,- 000 a year.

Lewis could not be reached for comment either at his San Bernardino headquarters or his office in Washington, D.C.

In a second vote taken in the House Tuesday, Dreier voted in favor of capping salaries at the $60,662 level. Both Brown and Lewis voted against the amendment that would have frozen pay for members at the current level and it was defeated in a tie vote.

Salary increases for congressmen and U.S. senators were tied into a cost-of-living index in 1976, a Dreier aide explained. However, since 1979, that had not been permitted.
